A Year without TV!

Until last year, the Crawford sisters spent a lot of their free time watching TV. When they got home from school, Sally, 13, and Grace, 12, liked to lie on the sofa and watch their favorite TV programs. The TV even stayed on during family meals.

So, when parents Ben and Tanya decided to ban TV, the sisters weren't very pleased. Then they heard their parents' plan and got excited about the idea.

Ben and Tanya made a list of 100 alternative activities that they wanted to do with the family during the year. The list included things like learning to make bread, sleeping on a beach, climbing a mountain in winter, and flying a giant kite.
